MADMAN ATTACKS FLIER 2000 FEET ABOVE THE EARTH

Beats Aviator With Hammer: Story of Thrilling Flight

Pontiac, Mich., May 15.—(AP)—The story of a battle 2,000 feet in the air between two fliers, Harry Anderson of Roseville, Mich., pilot, and Clarence Frechett of Detroit, an aerial exhibitionist, which resulted in the plane's crashing and in a remarkable escape from death by the occupants, was under investigation today.

Both men were found seriously injured in the plane, which was demolished in landing on the grounds of the state hospital for the insane yesterday.

Anderson told police he was attacked by Frechett with a hammer while flying over Pontiac. Losing consciousness after repeated blows from the weapon, Anderson said, he recovered after the plane had taken a sheer drop of nearly 1,800 feet, in time to right it for the rough landing that averted almost certain death for himself and Frechett.

Skull Fractured
Anderson's skull was fractured and he was painfully injured about the face, most of his teeth having been knocked out, supposedly by blows from the hammer. Frechett was less seriously injured.

Frechett is under heavy police guard at a hospital. He engaged Anderson to pilot him to Pontiac. From letters found in Frechett's clothing police thought the purpose of the trip might have been a bizarre and pre-conceived plan of self-destruction the episode of which was to have been over the home town of his sweetheart.

One of the letters, addressed to a Miss Georgia Park of Pontiac, couched in endearments, concluded as follows: "Death is my message, sweetheart."

Another addressed to Frechett's mother, said he feared that "death approached."

Anderson told police that when they arrived over Pontiac, the passenger grabbed a hammer and began to belabor him over the head.

Pilot's Story
"It was awful," Anderson told Sheriff Harvey Tedder, "the first blow at me barely grazed my head. I tried to grapple with him and at the same time keep my machine from pitching. One of the blows made everything go black. Then I remember coming to. I saw we were heading in a nose dive. I jerked the controls and tried to right the plane. Just as I was swinging out of the dive, I felt the wheels of the undercarriage touch the ground for some distance and then the ship went over the nose."

Anderson was found unconscious trapped in the pilot's seat. Frechett, badly dazed, still clutched in his hand the handle of a broken hammer.

Fined for Driving With Wrong Plates
Carl Boyd of this city, was fined $5 and costs by Police Magistrate A. E. Simonson at the sheriff's office in the county jail last evening on a charge of driving an automobile bearing fictitious license plates. Boyd was arrested by State Highway Officer Hal Roberts following an automobile crash Saturday morning at the intersection of Dixon avenue and Third street in which two cars were demolished. Boyd was driving a Chandler touring car which bore license plates issued for another make of machine. In checking up the numbers State Officer Roberts discovered the fictitious plates and arrested the driver of the car.

Former Owner Red Sox Killed in Fall
New York, May 15.—(AP)—J. J. Lannin, former owner of the Boston Red Sox baseball team and present owner of Roosevelt Field and other Long Island property, jumped or fell to his death from the ninth story window of a Brooklyn hotel today.

Mr. Lannin went this morning to the Grand Hotel in Brooklyn, which he owned, and told the manager, that he was going to a room on the ninth floor to inspect some new plastering.

A few moments later the crash of his fall was heard and he was found dead on the roof of a two story extension.

The legal department of the Dixon Water company announced today that an application was filed with the commission some time ago, asking for change in the rates for service.

Wants to Know Why Companions in Crime are Free

Chicago, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—A convict's letter to the judge who sentenced him to thirty-five years for murder today turned attention to circumstances by which his four companions in the crime have been paroled.

Jim Paletta, who wrote the letter asking Judge Dennis E. Sullivan of the Superior Court how his gangster friends—Frank Sicoli, John Giordani, Jim Morilli and George Lombardi—went free—pleaded guilty to killing a man at Glenwood. That was fourteen years ago. All but Paletta were given forty years. His youth, 19 years, saved him five years.

In his letter, Paletta said Sicoli was released on parole eight years ago. The others four months ago. Sicoli, said Paletta "did the kill," meaning he had fired the shots during a holdup.

REPRODUCTION OF COLONIAL EVENTS IN HISTORIC FETE

President and Wife are Guests at Annapolis Ceremony

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—A vivid reproduction of stirring episodes of colonial days called President and Mrs. Coolidge to Annapolis today to witness a pageant in commemoration of the Annapolis convention of 1786. Re-enactment of such historic scenes as the arrival of George Washington in Annapolis to accept the presidency of the United States and the resignation of his commission in the old senate chamber has been carefully rehearsed for the benefit of the distinguished guests. Governor Ritchie of Maryland had invited the executives of the original twelve colonies to the executive mansion to welcome President Coolidge upon his arrival in the Maryland capital. The state governors were to accompany the President to the old state house and to other historic mansions in the city which were opened up and specially decorated in period style for the occasion.

At the Hammond-Harwood-House built in 1770, John Hays Hammond of Washington, a kin of the original builder of the mansion, was to introduce the President and Mrs. Coolidge to various colonial characters, including George Washington, Lafayette, and other notables of the time, several of whom were impersonated by their own descendants in original costumes.

BREMEN FLIERS PASSED UP THIS PART OF ILLINOIS

Did Not Come by Way of Rockford: Late Start is Cause

Because of the late start they got from Milwaukee Monday afternoon and unfavorable flying conditions the Bremen fliers changed their plans and did not fly over any part of Lee county on their way to St. Louis, as had been originally arranged. They had planned to circle Rockford and then head south, but instead headed straight for the Missouri city from Milwaukee, passing over Rockford and this part of Illinois.

PRAISE LINDBERGH
St. Louis, May 15.—(AP)—Every resource of the city of St. Louis as host lay before the Bremen fliers here today. The three famous airmen—Captain Koehl, Baron von Hunefeld and Major Fitzmaurice—who flew from Milwaukee yesterday, found themselves surrounded on every side by the hospitality of Colonel Lindbergh's home city.

As their ship, the silver F-13, a sister craft to the famous Bremen, landed at Lambert-St. Louis field yesterday, they were engulfed by the enthusiastic crowds who were unwilling to wait until the parade today.

A more formal reception awaited them however and the trio were taken in three planes to Forest Park where a short program of speaking engaged their attention. In the evening they were guests at a banquet where they paid tribute to Colonel Lindbergh, who is absent from the city.

In his broken English Captain Koehl said the three "had been waiting for a long time to come to your town, which is the home of Colonel Lindbergh, the greatest aviator in the world." Major Fitzmaurice said he had hoped the Flying Colonel would be here when they came, but that it was impossible.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Abt accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. George Schultz motored to Rock Island, Mo. and Davenport Sunday. While in Davenport they visited at the WOC broadcasting station.

TWO AGED SISTERS BEATEN TO DEATH BY THIEF AT LOUISVILLE HOME: FOUND BY THEIR NEPHEW

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—(AP)—The bodies of two aged sisters, beaten to death as they lay in bed, were discovered this morning at their cottage home on Maple Street. A trunk had been pried open and officers advanced the theory that robbery had been the motive of the killing of Mrs. Belle Holmes, 79, and Miss Kate Satterwhite, 72.

Dr. Roy L. Carter, coroner, said the condition of the bodies indicated the two women were slain Sunday night. Neighbors saw them last on Sunday evening when they attended church services at a nearby chapel. Post mortem examinations will be conducted.

The two women lived by themselves. The bodies were discovered by Clarence B. Stephens of South Thirty Second street, a nephew, about 40 years old. He was questioned by police but not taken into custody.

The bodies of the women were found in separate beds, both badly beaten about the head and face.

CARLSTROM WILL DIRECT CHICAGO CRIME INQUIRY

Special Grand Jury is to Convene June 4 for Crime Probe

Chicago, May 15.—(AP)—Chicago crime at last is to go under the scalpel of a special grand jury.

Chief Justice Brothers of the Criminal Court decided yesterday to refer the whole series of political murders, bombings, intimidations and kidnappings to a jury to be called together June 4. Oscar Carlstrom, Attorney General of Illinois, will be the prosecutor, probably with the assistance of two representatives of the Chicago Bar Association, which has been active in demanding a thorough probe.

The grand jury will be empowered to go back as far as the 1926 elections in its inquiry into charges of terrorism and fraud. It will be asked to look into all the circumstances surrounding the bombing of Senator Deneen's home, as well as the slaying of "Diamond Joe" Esposito and Octavio Grady, each of whom was a candidate for ward committeeman of the Deneen ticket at the April 19, last, primary election.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, under whose regime the politico-crime conditions are alleged to have existed, joined in the request for the special grand jury.

Another angle of the politico-crime situation was being heard by six Criminal Court Judges, sitting en banc, listening to arguments for the removal from the criminal bench of Judges Kerner, Eller and Karkowski. These Judges have been charged by the Chicago Crime Commission with having hampered administration of justice through "surrender of their judicial honor to the command of the criminal element."

The appointment of the gas tax as well as the passage of traction bills is likely to prove a stumbling block. Gov. Small who was defeated in the state primaries, it was indicated, may have difficulty holding his organization in line, particularly as some 30 members defeated in the primaries are making their last appearance as lawmakers for the present at least.

Should these bills be enacted into law their provisions would also be offered to other Illinois cities. Downstate legislators in the past have opposed such measures and so far as known, their sentiment has not changed.

The meeting will be open to Kiwanians and their ladies and will open with a dinner in the parlors of the Christian church at 6:30.

Attorney Sherwood Dixon told the Kiwanians this noon of the progress that is being made relative to the organization of a company in the 129th infantry, Illinois National Guard in Dixon. To date about half the number necessary to assure a company for Dixon, have voluntarily signed without solicitation upon the part of the committee. Others who contemplate becoming members were requested to register their names at the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Dr. S. W. Lehman was the speaker before the Kiwanians today and in a highly interesting manner, gave an altogether too brief synopsis of his observations in European countries visited by him in a recent tour abroad.

DESTRUCTION OF OLD HOTEL CAUSE OF MUCH REGRET

Sheffield House, Grand Detour, Known for Its Hospitality

"Goodbye, Old Timer" was the sentiment of thousands in this vicinity at the news of the destruction by fire of the old "Sheffield House," a landmark in the Rock River Valley and a historical old way side inn that dates back to Civil War days. Of the hosts of guests who have enjoyed the hospitality of the famous hotel during the years gone by none can hear of its passing without a feeling of regret.

It was in the year 1861 that Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Sheffield moved from Dixon to the Grand Detour home and farm owned at that time by W. T. House. After living there for three years they conceived the idea of launching into the hotel business, whereupon they rented the old "Clinton House" and repaired it and opened it to the public, it having been closed for a number of years. After less than one year Mr. Sheffield purchased of Geo. L. Herrick of Dixon a little one and one-half story cottage and began building additions from year to year and thus started the well known old Sheffield House, which was home to so many regular and transient guests. Very many were they who in those days partook of and appreciated Mother Sheffield's generous hospitality.

Later, after Mr. Sheffield's passing, Mrs. Sheffield carried on until she retired to the farm with her two youngest sons. After her retirement the hotel business was taken over by C. A. Sheffield and his wife, who operated it for many years, continuing building up of the good name of the old hostelry and spreading its fame as a summer resort and celebrated eating place. "Sheff" and his wife were famous in many states for their hospitality and their "grogging board" laden down with fish and chicken and cottage cheese and the many delicious home-cooked dishes.

A couple of years ago Mr. and Mrs. Sheffield retired, selling to the present owner, R. H. Wells. Mr. Sheffield had built a three story addition and Mrs. Wells a large two story addition, making a very large and commodious building. Mr. Wells just opened to the public for the season a few days ago.

The fire of May 14th, which completely destroyed the hotel, wipes out an interesting and historic old place.

Franklin Man's Car Near End in River
An Oakland sedan owned by Wilbur Emmert of Franklin Grove came near meeting a watery end Saturday night at 9 o'clock at the parking space east of the Galena avenue bridge. The car had been looked and parked and suddenly started moving. It backed into one of the heavy abutment locks, toppling it over the retaining wall into the river and the rear wheels backed over the edge of the wall and the car settled on its frame before it stopped.

A fisherman who was angling at the base of the wall was badly frightened when the heavy block of stone crashed over the bank and fell beside him and looking up he saw the rear wheels of the machine as it came to a stop.

Clark Hess of the local branch of the Chicago Motor club was about to drive his car away from the parking space and saw the car backing toward the edge of the wall. He made an effort to reach the emergency brake, but found the door locked. A wrecking car removed the sedan from its perilous position without its being damaged.

FLOOD CONTROL IS ASSURED AS PRES. SIGNS FIRST BILL

Government Embarks on Its Greatest Engineering Project

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—President Coolidge today signed the Mississippi river flood control bill. By affixing his signature to the measure, Mr. Coolidge placed upon the statute books an act which embarks the federal government upon the tremendous task of curbing the flood waters of the Mississippi—probably one of the greatest engineering undertakings ever attempted in history.

The same stroke of the President's pen also completed the first of what are regarded as the three major problems up to the present Congress. The other two, farm relief and tax reduction, still are pending in legislative form at the capitol.

The new flood control law was framed jointly by Senator Jones, chairman of the Senate commerce committee and Chairman Reid of the House flood control committee and calls for the expenditure by the federal treasury of $325,000,000. The engineering plan for the work proposes the strengthening of the levees along the Mississippi river and the building of three floodways and a spillway as outlets to carry off from the main stream the excess flood waters into the Gulf of Mexico.

Govt. Pays Expense
Upon the federal government is placed the entire expense of the flood control work with the exception of the furnishing of the levee foundations on the main river to be borne by the Mississippi valley states, but this cost to the states is estimated only at about $500,000.

The new law represents over six months of labor by Congress. For four months Senate and House committees conducted exhaustive hearings on the problem, questioning three cabinet members and a host of Army engineers, members of Congress and state governors and officials.

One of Mr. Coolidge's chief objections centered on the proportion of the cost of the control work to be assumed by the states and another hinged on whether the states or federal government would shoulder the cost of damages sustained by owners of the land in the proposed floodways.

On the first point, the new law requires states to provide the rights of way on the main stream and on the second point the federal government is obligated to obtain flowage easements or, in other words, to pay damages only when lands not perviously subjected to flood menace are flooded as a result of the floodways and spillways having been constructed.

From Missouri to Gulf
The federal government, further, would not be responsible for damages sustained in natural floodways such as swamp lands and marshes.

The flood control project authorized by the new law covers the lower Mississippi valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico.

However, the flood control work would be extended to other streams under the provisions of the new law. Out of the total authorized sum, $10,000,000 would be used for levee construction on the main river between Rock Island, Ill., and Cape Girardeau, Mo., and on tributaries and outlets of the Mississippi affected by backwaters.

An allotment of $5,000,000 out of the total fund also would be utilized for flood control surveys on eight tributaries—the Red, Yazoo, Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, White, St. Francis and Ohio rivers and their tributaries.

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—California cherries, cereal, cream, baked omelet, crisp rye toast, rhubarb conserve, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cream of celery soup, toasted crackers, veal and carrot salad, whole wheat bread, rice and pineapple pudding, milk, tea.
DINNER—Noodle soup, twice baked potatoes, hard cooked eggs stuffed with spinach, buttered new beets, head lettuce with Roquefort cheese dressing, maple custard, nut cookies, milk, coffee.

This vegetable plate dinner is planned with contrasting colors as well as flavors and textures of vegetables. These three factors should be kept in mind when making up a vegetable plate. A custard or soufflé is always a happy choice for the dessert of a vegetable dinner since protein is otherwise lacking.

Rhubarb Conserve.
Six cups diced rhubarb, 3 oranges, 1 lemon, 1 cup seeded raisins, 6 cups sugar, 1 cup broken walnut meats, lemon. Cut rhubarb in shreds and cover with cold water. Bring to the boiling point and simmer until almost tender. Add diced rhubarb and cook until tender. Add sugar and raisins and cook until mixture thickens when a spoonful is tested on a cold saucer. Add nuts if wanted and cook five minutes longer. Turn into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffine when cold.

This makes a good accompaniment for cold sliced ham or chicken.

Y. P. M. C. Held May Meeting Monday Eve

The May meeting of the Young Peoples Missionary Circle held Monday evening at the Grace Evangelical Church was one of interest and a very fine program was enjoyed. The meeting was in charge of Gladys Stroup and Ruth Beede. After singing a song the Scripture lesson was read by Ruth Beede and prayers were offered by Clifford Missman, Helen Bose and Mrs. Brandt. Special selections by Mrs. Fern Krahler on the saxophone, Clifford Missman on the piano and a vocal duet by Bessie Missman and Helen Brandt were enjoyed by all. The lesson study was ably presented by Meriam Richart. Following the singing of the Circle song and repeating John 3:16, Mildred Schrock, president, took charge of the business session. An interesting letter from Miss Hulda Christner missionary among the Italians at Racine, Wis., was read, in which she expressed her appreciation of the interest of the circle in sending their spend-a-day offerings and remembering her in prayer. Three new members were received. Thirty-five young people were present.

Dr. Palmer Talked To Women's Club

(Contributed)

Perhaps the most instructive and simultaneously interesting address members of the Dixon Woman's Club have had the opportunity of listening in to many months, was delivered Saturday evening at the regular meeting of the club by B. J. Palmer, of the Palmer School of Chiropractic, Davenport, Iowa.

Mr. Palmer's talk was the feature of the evening at which about 200 club women and their guests were present. The meeting was held in the Christian church and was one of the largest the club has held.

Mrs. Lloyd Lewis, chairman of the Community Service Department introduced the speaker with a few well chosen words. Then with precision and purpose, Dr. Palmer stepped forward and immediately began his theme which was "Fogs." Holding his audience just as easily and naturally as he does over radio station WOC.

Dr. Palmer wears a beard, mustache and long hair touching the top of his coat collar in the back, also a black Windsor tie just like all the poets and painters and sculptors wear in the movies. He is interesting on the platform, he is different. Naturalness permeates his makeup. He is courageous and he need make no show of it. He is a man with a vision.

What he had to say in part is as follows: His theme, "Fogs" was based on a state of mind we find our country in at the present time.

Fog is an all enveloping atmosphere which allows one to see neither to the right nor the left, ahead or behind. How like life is a fog, clear a little while then all is darkness causing one to be helpless to help himself.

Youth is passing through a jazz fog he is not old enough to see his folly.

Fogs are mental hazards because lives are at stake, however this fog, like all fogs, will lift. May lift young or may lift old, then too it may never lift. We are enveloped at times in the throw of a mental fog. We loose our vision because we loose our way. Surrounded by light and yet all is dark within, fogs seem to cloud one's mind with extraneous interruptions.

Life is just a series of fogs we no sooner pass into one until we go through another, without unity from the whole, man's vision suffers. Men are great because they issue visions their ideals are always before them.

Sorrow is because of success.

Pain is because of health.

Day is because of night.

He went on to relate some of the wonderful inspirations that had been given to us by those who had had a vision—examples of great men all over the world who had visions. His first illustration was that of the song, "Perfect Day," written as we know by Carrie Jacobs Bond, who received her vision out of what seemed to be an inconceivable grief brought by the death of her husband. He then told how visions had caused the writing of the songs "My Old Kentucky Home," "Aloha," "The Volga Boatman," not only songs but great works of art such as the "Painting of the Last Supper," Architecture—as "Tah Majh," etc.

Many interesting descriptions which space forbids enlarging upon but which gave a new thought and greater beauty to things already familiar.

His radio illustration was quite an inspiration in itself. The initials G-O-D stands for the one and only station which has only one wave length and is forever broadcasting harmony, good, light, cheerfulness, health, music, etc., to all the world at all times. Our minds are the receiving stations, tune in on one and receive the others. Man is a finite receiving set trying to interpret the infinite, always wanting to understand the Great broadcaster.

"Fog can't last always. We are surrounded with light. We are blinded to the facts about us. We have eyes and know not where we go. But we shall see when the fog rises." His address was one of intense interest from first to last and everyone present was glad to have the opportunity of listening to the strikingly unusual individual "B. J." of Davenport, Iowa.

Two lovely vocal duets were given by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Long accompanied by Mrs. E. M. Goodsell.

Women's Dept. Y. M. C. A. Girls' Camp

The "Y" Girls' Camp plans are well under way and a large group of each department have already signed up. It is hoped that it is clearly understood that there are two distinct camp periods. There is still a question in the minds of some that the "Y" is responsible for the Scout work. It seems necessary to state that these are two distinct organizations doing girls work. The director of the Women's Department has had many approaches made to her regarding the Scout work by people who are under the impression that she is handling this work. It may be because the scout work is carried on at the Y. M. C. A. that confuses people. It has a definite piece of work to do and has its own staff independent of the Y. M. C. A.

The Women's Department of the Y. M. C. A. has its staff—Mrs. Yohn Director—and a definite program. Each member has a membership obligation of five dollars a year. This is taken care of by the members themselves. It is under this department that the two camp periods for "Y" Girls function. The periods begin June 21st and ends July 12th. Registration for both periods are filling up fast. Every girl interested is urged to sign up or call the "Y" soon that her name may be registered.

The happy event last evening was a surprise to Miss Ruth and a number of the parents and relatives had been invited to join in the fun. The rehearsal was a short one and the evening was spent socially. Delicious refreshments were served completing the enjoyment of all present.

Cakes

and Miss Warner's pleasant "tasting surprise"

SHORTENING for cakes should be so fresh and sweet that in baking it brings out, rather than detracts from, the delicate flavor of the cake itself.

Can you imagine making a cake with a shortening you wouldn't be willing to taste? Miss Eleanor M. Warner couldn't. So she tasted Crisco just as it came from the can—and wrote:

"The taste of Crisco was fresh, sweet. Now I do not hesitate to use Crisco in any way in which high-priced butter might be used. And often I have even better results."

Just a taste of Crisco will tell you why more good home cooks are depending upon it for better cakes, pies, biscuits and fried foods.

Five-Minute Spice Cake

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup Crisco
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brown sugar
2 eggs
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cups flour

1 cup chopped raisins

Put all ingredients together in a bowl and beat thoroughly until smooth. Bake in loaf pan in a moderate oven (350° F.) 30 to 60 minutes. Ice with white or caramel frosting. May also be baked in cup cakes.

Maple Nut Cake Loaf

Will keep a long time

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup Crisco
1 cup light brown sugar
2 eggs
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk

$\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon cinnamon
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon grated nutmeg

Cream the Crisco with the sugar, stir in the beaten yolks. Add alternately the milk and the flour sifted with the baking powder and salt. Stir in the nuts well dredged with flour and the vanilla. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a paper-lined loaf pan in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 40 minutes. Ice with caramel icing.

Caramel Frosting

Make the frosting while the cake is baking

WRANGLER'S LOST CAUSE.

Almost overlooked by the daily press, Baron Peter Wrangel, one-time leader of the "White" Russian forces, died the other day in Brussels.

There was a time when his exploits filled many columns in the papers. His death, however, was almost crowded out by news of aviators, primary elections and auto speed racers. History, it seems fair to guess, will not do a great deal better by him.

For Wrangel had the misfortune to attach himself to a cause that was beaten from the beginning. His name will be mentioned in future days only as that of a man who fought against the inevitable. He was not one of the great figures who can shine resplendent even in defeat; instead his record is invested with a peculiar sense of futility.

Probably you remember the outlines of his case. He served with distinction as an officer in the czar's army during the World War; in the early part of the war he won promotion by leading a "forlorn hope" charge of the Russian imperial cavalry against a German machine gun position. When the czar's authority melted before the rising blasts of revolution in 1918 Wrangel, lacking sympathy with Bolshevism, fled.

Then began the many attempts by loyalists to overthrow the outlandish government set up by the Bolsheviks. Outstanding among these efforts was the one led by Wrangel. For long months, with varying fortunes, he led his army into Russia. Allied governments gave him half-concealed assistance; his banners carried the hopes of the old order everywhere, and all those who distrusted and feared Russia's new regime sent their prayers with him.

But it was a hopeless cause. What Wrangel and his supporters could not understand was that the Russian revolution was inevitable and resistless. It had been generated by long years of oppression and ignorance, and it had to be. The rest of the world could deplore its excesses, could shudder at the perverted creeds and maxims that it gave birth to, could weep over its tragedies of blood shed and cruelty; but they could not stop it. Wrangel, setting out to end the revolution and restore the Romanoffs, was like a man with spade and wheelbarrow trying to stem the current of Niagara.

So Wrangel, at last, saw his army scattered, and had to flee over the borders forever and take refuge in a Belgian cottage.

There ought to be some sort of warning for us in his story. These are stirring times; the world is giving vent to many new movements, many new forms, and it behooves us to read them aright. If we do not we may fall into Wrangel's error and, giving our lives over to futility, waste our strength fighting the inevitable.

BEAUTIFUL ADS.

"The basis of good advertising is beauty," says an advertising man. That will bear thinking about.

"Tomatoes are never so beautiful," he adds, "nor lettuce so green, as when appearing in the magazines." He might have complimented likewise the pie and cake ads that make a reader's mouth water, and the building ads that make you feel like going right out and hiring an architect and landscape gardener and ordering a lot of building materials.

Many advertisers, especially those using billboards and electric lights, seem to think it's size and glare that count. Others put their faith in repetition. Probably the esthetic ad man quoted above is ahead of them all.

Beauty is the great lure, drawing even those who do not know why they are drawn.

Now that the Pulitzer book prize has been awarded to "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," there probably will be a great flocking of ace-trumpets to buy the work.

With the bathing beauty contest at Atlantic City called off this year, wonder how we're ever going to find out who are the "home girls, kind to their mothers, love to wash dishes," etc.?

From Port Arthur, Ont., comes a dispatch telling of a rain of fine mud that spattered people, houses and streets. Do they have Democrats and Republicans in Canada, too?

THE ANIMATES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

"Course Clowney was a lazy lad, and he exclaimed, 'I'm surely glad that I'm not sawing down that tree. You boys are pretty good. Go right ahead and saw clear through. That is the proper thing to do. Just thing, that tree will shortly be just great big planks of wood.'"

Then Clowney stopped to rest a while. He looked at Clowney with a smile. I'll bet you couldn't push this saw. You haven't strength enough. You think it's easy. Well, just try. The work would make you heave and sigh. You always say you do things well, but usually it's a bluff."

This line of talk made Clowney jump. Said he, "I'll show you I'm no chump. You're trying to make the work seem hard. You can't fool me one bit." He pushed the big saw to and fro, and Clowney cried, "Aw shucks, you're slow. I think you'd better give it up and come back here and sit."

But Clowney tired a wee bit more and then his arms seemed very sore. "I've done my share," he loudly cried. "It's Clowney's turn I guess." So Clowney jumped up with a yell. He did his sawing very well. The Tines laughed at Clowney 'cause his turn had been a mess.

The sawing made a lot of noise, and then the woodsman said, "Well, boys your task is almost finished, and I'm mighty glad of that. Right soon we'll take a long, long tramp, away up to the lumber camp. Look out! The tree is tottering, and soon it will fall flat."

The Tines scampered here and there. A roaring sound came through the air. "Run far away," yelled Clowney. "It's not safe to be around!" And then the monstrous forest tree slid down as nicely as could be. It sent a gust of wind out as it landed on the ground.

or another person's heart, thrust upon him?

For instance, no one, I presume, would want to expect to stay in the White House all his life, but don't tell me that anyone could leave that beautiful place without regret. That's what I mean about old loves. You don't want them and you wouldn't want to keep them from finding a successor to you, but darned if you would like to sit on the sidelines and watch your own eviction.

Even if Florence hadn't done so well with her boy friends she's an attractive girl and far be it for me to say that Norman wouldn't fall in love with her. So, with that possibility to face, I think I'm of a very magnanimous nature to permit her to "ghost" for me.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist, is in love with the beautiful VIRGINIA BUESTER, daughter and heiress of a Wall Street financier. But NIEL'S model, CHIRI, is jealous of VIRGINIA and tells him that he will spoil his career if he marries a wealthy girl who cannot appreciate his art. He says that love will overcome obstacles and they are making happy plans until her father dies suddenly of heart failure and VIRGINIA is prostrated with grief.

It is revealed that BREWSTER had lost his fortune in speculation. NIEL urges an immediate marriage but his pleading is interrupted by FREDERICK DEAN, an old family friend, who persuades VIRGINIA to come and live with him and his daughter CLARISSA, who is a girlhood chum of hers. He wins her consent by saying that an immediate marriage would be disrespectful to her father's memory.

NIEL is furious when VIRGINIA tells him her decision, for he suspects DEAN'S motives, and does not like the shallow CLARISSA, who has just announced her engagement to RUSSELL WAINGOLD. He takes VIRGINIA to her new home and returns unhappily to his neglected studio, where he finds CHIRI, who has cleaned his apartment and has her coffee waiting for him. Fearing that CHIRI will become a nuisance, he replaces her and she leaves in a temper. Next day he goes with VIRGINIA for a farewell visit to her old home and she selects a few personal articles to keep for remembrance. They meet CLARISSA and her fiancé.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

CLARISSA had introduced her fiancé to Virginia and turned to address a casual greeting to Nathaniel. Then she turned back to Virginia to explain that she had brought Russell with her against his will. She realized in an instant, however, that such an explanation would partake of the nature of an anticlimax in view of the fact that he seemed to have lost his reluctance. He was quite frankly putting himself on pleasant terms with Virginia.

But it must have been something more than what was actually happening, something that Russell's manner suggested, that brought the expression that so startled Nathaniel to Clari's beautiful made-up features.

Perhaps none but an artist would have caught the fleet unweaving, would have seen the stark nakedness of anger that bared itself for the tiniest fraction of a second in the hard blue eyes. But to Nathaniel's keen sight it was full confirmation of his first estimate of this friend of Virginia's.

The feeling he had been trying to shake off, the feeling that Virginia was walking into trouble, returned anew to Nathaniel on that look of Clari's and he was more than ever conscious that he was making a mistake in not insisting that Virginia should marry him at once.

But Clari's next words convinced him that anything he should say against her attitude in the matter would ring hollow. She was urging Virginia most earnestly to come along right off, in time for luncheon. Nathaniel found it difficult to reconcile her apparent sincerity with what he believed she really felt.

Virginia let herself be persuaded into hurrying her departure, but Nathaniel guessed it was to quiet Clari's clamor more than anything else.

When she had gone to her room to finish her packing there Clari's crossed the room and rang the servants' bell.

"Well see if we can't scare up some cocktails," she announced to Russell.

It was Mrs. Pike who answered the ring.

"Good morning, Pike," Clari's said.

"You know, Virginia, I'm dead in love with Russell."

greeted the housekeeper: "can't we have a shaker of cocktails while we wait for Miss Brewster?"

"I'm sorry, miss; there's no one left to prepare them."

"What? Have the servants gone? Well, never mind, we'll do it ourselves. Come along, Russell; I hope we find the essentials."

Mrs. Pike led the way to the pantry but Nathaniel remained where he was. For one reason, Clari's had in no way included him in the invitation to accompany her and for another, he wouldn't have gone if she had. He hoped Virginia would not learn what her friends were doing.

He fretted in fear they would not finish their ill-timed indulgence before Virginia reappeared, but presently they came back, complaining that it was a fizzle.

"The butler or someone cleaned out the place," Clari's accused. She was about to give further voice to her disgust when Virginia joined them, carrying a traveling case.

"Would you mind asking downstairs to have someone come up for these things?" she said to Clari's. "I'll be down in just a minute."

She motioned Nathaniel to stay when he seemed uncertain whether to go with Clari's and Russell.

A few minutes later, when she and Nathaniel entered Clari's car, Virginia felt like a person whose soul had been torn in twain. It seemed to her that a great part of herself had been left behind in those deserted rooms.

The Deans were one of the few old-time families still living in a house on Fifth Avenue. It was soon reached from the Brewster apartment. On the way Clari's invited Nathaniel to stop for lunch, but as the spirit of hospitality was entirely lacking from her words he declined.

At the door he said goodbye to Virginia and promised to be at his telephone if she wanted him.

"I think I'll get to work and see if I can't bring our castle in Spain a little nearer," he told her, forcing himself to a cheerful smile that he was far from feeling. He looked behind her at the Deans' front door and it seemed to him a barrier that had risen between them, mocking his plans.

Mr. Dean was waiting to welcome the new member of his household and there was no lack of warmth in his manner. He drew her close with his hands on her shoulders and brushed a nice kiss on her forehead. Clari's, standing nearby, allowed a queer smile to lift one corner of her mouth.

Clari's saw her settled in her room and started to go but at the door she turned on a sudden impulse and remarked, seemingly apropos of nothing:

"You know, Virginia, I'm dead in love with Russell."

Virginia regarded her in surprise.

"I'm sure you must be," she said. "He's really very nice, Clari's."

"Yes, he's attractive," Clari's agreed, "but what might be more important, he's also rich. As rich, I should say, as father, or he will become day. Quite a catch if someone who needed to marry for money could manage to lure him away from me." She paused and laughed. "But such a person would find her path strewn with many difficulties," she added and laughed again, a laugh that bewildered Virginia because of its mirthlessness.

"Why, Clari's, you talk as though you weren't sure of him."

"I'm not. No woman can ever be sure of any rich man while there are penniless women in the world," Clari's returned slowly.

Virginia shrank as from a physical blow. "Penniless women . . ." she murmured; "penniless women . . ."

"Exactly, my dear," Clari's said easily.

Virginia looked at her squarely. "But I should think you would believe in Russell if only because he has money," she said gravely. "He doesn't need to make a wealthy marriage."

"Yes, I have the satisfaction of knowing he isn't after dad's money," Clari's acknowledged. "But to get back to the point, the fact that he will inherit a fortune only makes his attitude in the choice of a wife so much wider. He can afford to marry anyone he wishes."

"And he has chosen you," Virginia said softly.

"With my help," Clari's appended frankly; "but that oughtn't to be startling to you, Virginia."

"How do you mean?" Virginia asked, truly at a loss to understand her friend's remark.

Clari's eyed her silently for a moment, with the faintest hint of a sneer on her perfectly rouged lips. "Oh well," she shrugged, "if you prefer the ridiculous pretensions of our grandmothers. But in that case I should say you are hardly being true to your convictions."

"Clari's, you are talking in riddles."

"Really? Then tell me, is it consistent to pretend you still believe that men do the choosing and yet act as much as . . . modern as you have?"

"Is it modern to grieve for a father? Is that what you mean?" "Well, I do think you haven't allowed your grief to cloud your judgment, Virginia. That's why I say you are a modern even if you do refuse the language."

"I suppose you say that because I came here instead of marrying Nathaniel. You would understand, Clari's, if you had lost a parent."

"Oh, of course I know you were devoted, you and your father," Clari's admitted grudgingly. "But you know mother's divorce took her away from me just as much as if she had died. At least I felt that way about it. But I can't recall that it robbed me of my power to think for myself. However . . . it doesn't matter, I'm glad you're here, Virginia, for reasons of my own which I promise to tell you some day."

"Then you really are sincere about it? I was beginning to wonder, Clari's, if you were as pleased as you said."

"Nonsense, dear; you're as welcome as Lindy. Only I'm glad we've had this little talk. I'm sure we understand each other now."

She kissed Virginia and went out, leaving the latter to ponder over the "little talk."

"If it weren't too utterly absurd I'd say she was warning me not to trespass with Russell," Virginia told herself. "I wonder . . ."

Further reflections were ended for the moment, however, by a rap on the door.

Wife of American in Nicaragua Mistreated

Managua, Nicaragua, May 15—(AP)—The east coast of Nicaragua was incensed today over the savage treatment suffered at the hands of rebels.

Seeking revenge because of information given by Miller to the Marine forces, the guerrillas swept upon this plantation near the east coast. Miller was absent. In their fury, the rebels assaulted Mrs. Miller. They carried off everything of value. What they could not take they destroyed.

In learning that American Marines were planning a drive up the Coco river to cut them off from supplies, the rebels confiscated all the river craft. For sometime the insurgents kept men and boats at leading points along the river. One of these outposts heard that Miller had given the Marines valuable information on their movements and the raid of his plantation followed.

LIGHTWEIGHTS KNOCK OFF ON THEIR TRAINING

Mandell and McLarnin Ready for Battle Thursday Eve

New York, May 15—(AP)—Sammy Mandell and Jimmy McLarnin have ended active training for their 15-round lightweight championship bout at the Polo Grounds Thursday night.

The "Rockford Sheik" and his Pacific coast challenger put in a strenuous day yesterday and then laid aside the gloves until they clamber through the ropes at the baseball park on Thursday.

Mandell plans to come down from his training camp at Orangeburgh, N. Y. in time for the weighing in Thursday afternoon.

Marking as it does the first lightweight titular battle here since Benny Leonard defeated Lew Tender in 1923, the bout appears certain to draw a crowd of 60,000 or more.

The bout will give Tex Rickard a chance to put one of his theories into practice. Believing that it is absurd to ask lightweights to perform in a ring similar to that which middleweights and the other heavier divisions use, Rickard intends to lower the ropes to conform with the size of the titular principals.

The promoter expects to lower the top rope some eight or nine inches and adjust the two lower ropes so as to guard against either the champion or his opponent falling through and out of the ring.

To Frame Schedule

Evansville, Ill., May 15—(AP)—While Western Conference track and field stars compete for team championships and an opportunity to gain berths on America's Olympic team, Big Ten officials will draw up sports schedules for 1929 at Evansville May 25 and 26.

Most of the football games have been arranged, only the dates remaining to be set.

Punchers to Meet

Chicago, May 15—(AP)—The Norwegian heavyweight threat Otto Norr, expects to meet the most severe test of his American invasion when he trades punches with Napoléon Jack Dorval of Emporia, Pa., in a scheduled ten round bout tonight. Both are hard right hand punchers, and both have predicted early knock-out victories.

Maryland Station, Ogle Co. Has Fire

Maryland Station, Ill.—Fire, of undetermined origin, Sunday night destroyed a small frame house situated just north of the Arjes store, causing a loss estimated at $1,000, with insurance of $500. The place was occupied by Ralph Longenecker, 70, who had lived there alone for several years. The blaze was discovered by Orville Binkley, about 6 o'clock. Binkley gave the alarm and volunteer fire fighters worked hard to prevent spread of the fire. No one was injured. Most of Mr. Longenecker's household furniture was destroyed.

Germany's Foreign Minister Very Ill

Berlin, May 15—(AP)—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, foreign minister, was confined to his bed today, seriously ill. All his scheduled election speeches have been cancelled.

Friends have long feared that Dr. Stresemann was burning up vital energy too rapidly by strenuous work. His health has been indifferent since he went to the Riviera in January to recuperate from an indisposition suffered at Christmas time. Apparently recovered, he attended the March conference at Geneva.

Now that house cleaning time has arrived you may find articles of furniture you wish to dispose of. A 50c ad in the Dixon Telegraph is bound to bring results.

ROCHELLE NEWS

Many other home owners are practically re-making their residences or doing extensive re-modeling and they include: H. H. Beebe, Sam Grube, Edward Calhoun, Mr. Zimmer, and the remodeling of the W. F. Eber residence to accommodate his filling station. Miss Ruth Blackman is building a new farm home on the Meridian Highway north of town; the Mid West Canning Co., is making repairs and new additions; and Barton & Pentz are building a new building at Klondyke Inn on the Lincoln Highway west.

In the spring of 1927 the gym girls decided to give a May fete and to establish this custom of the Rochelle high school. Miss Orva Longenecker then a Junior, was chosen queen and the day set for the fete this year is Wednesday, May 16th, at 2.30 o'clock, when Miss Longenecker will officiate as Senior queen and a Junior girl will be crowned, whose identity will not be known by the students until that day.

The program to be arranged for that day will be from the operetta, "The Contest of the Nation." It is to be a pantomime in dance and a prize will be given the nation which presents the best dance. These dances are to be presented in native costume before the Senior girls who will act as judges. Dances to be presented include: Spanish, Irish jig, Norwegian scarf, Swedish clap, farmers, spring, Russian, Dutch, minuet, highland fling.

The Senior girls dressed in bright colored spring dresses will represent court ladies and escort the Senior queen to her throne. This fete will take place on the high school lawn. The music will be furnished by Helen Jones, violinist, accompanied by Maxine Maginnis on the piano. Miss Dorothea Thompson, gym instructor, will direct the pageant. On this day the different rooms of the school will be opened to the public to exhibit the work of each department of the school.

The Rochelle Garden club will hold a tulip show tea in the parlors of the Presbyterian church, Friday afternoon, May 18. Mrs. George M. Kendall, of Glen Ellyn, chairman of the Chicago show held recently at the Hotel Sherman will be the principal speaker.

Mrs. Hilda Larson was presented with a large basket of tulips at the Sunday school hour at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, as being an especial faithful member of the Sunday school and a typical mother. The Home Department attended the session. An attendance of 197 was recorded and a collection of $13.06 was forwarded to the church orphanage at Assumption, Illinois.

In the district track meet held at Freeport in which 16 schools were entered and 260 track and field athletes participated Rochelle's four man team secured two fourths. Walters was fourth in the pole vault and McCoy was fourth in the mile. Redentus and Klewin did not place. Seven rural schools, presenting a class of 10 graduates, will conduct their eighth year graduation exercises here at the high school auditorium, Thursday evening, May 24, beginning at 8 p. m. This event will mark the introduction of a division of the whole county class exercises. The schools and their teachers who will be represented are: Fischer school, Gladys Grothe, Smith school, Margaret Coleman, Fletcher school, Josephine Talbot, Stein school, Miss Mathres; Willow Center School, Edna Oakland; Chamberlain school, Esther Lamb.

An excellent musical program will feature the exercises, which will be preceded by the principal address by Rev. Frank A. Campbell, A. M. Guhl, superintendent of the high school will officiate as presiding officer, while Margaret Soleman will act as chairman. County Superintendent George P. Cann will present the diplomas.

Reviewing the so-called "Miracle Cure" relative to the reputed restoring of hearing occurring to several of Rochelle's deaf pupils under Miss Gertrude Virgin, the deaf teacher's supervision among whom are the Houston children, Mrs. Eugene Houston, of 816 9th st., the mother, in a prepared statement released to the press says:

"Dr. Hopkins, of Dekalb, states that with ordinary alarm clock and voice tests made by him, that he found some reaction in the two younger Houston children. However, he was unable to find any reaction or symptoms of hearing from the two older Houston children.

"At no time have there been any tests made whatever by any body of Rochelle people, Dekalb gathering of physicians or any collection of school officials, as has been published by some papers.

"In no way is Miss Virgin responsible for the taking of the children to the Chicago temple.

"A test taken at the Delevan, Wis., state deaf institute, with instruments for that purpose, determined that three of Rochelle's deaf children showed 22 per cent hearing in each ear, while Russell Houston showed 23 per cent in the left and 31 in the right ear. Two years ago Russell Houston was found at the same institution to be totally deaf."

GOVERNOR URGES "HOME RULE" FOR CHICAGO IN NOTE

Message to Legislature Deals With Several Other Subjects

Springfield, Ill., May 15—(AP)—Emphasizing the need of giving rule to Chicago in the management of its public utilities, Governor Len Small today outlined for the Illinois General Assembly his suggestions for a program of work for the next several weeks.

The Governor's message on the initial day of the second extraordinary legislative session of 1928 was delivered at a joint session of the two houses, held in the hall of the House of Representatives.

The major reason the legislature has been summoned to Springfield the Governor said, is to settle, once and for all time the many perplexing problems arising in the administration of public utility companies in Chicago, especially in relation to transportation. He ranked next in importance his request that no terminable, or "indeterminate" franchise of any kind be granted until it had been submitted to a vote of the people.

"Other Subjects"
Other subjects in the call were grouped in the category of "other subjects," including what has been considered the important subject of refunding to counties their proportionate share of the $6,592,775 collected under the unconstitutional gasoline tax. No mention was made of the provision of the call asking the legislature to offer home rule to other Illinois cities.

"This session has been called," the Governor said, "to consider a number of subjects of pressing importance to the people. It is my belief that special consideration which may be given them at an extraordinary session when the number of legislative problems is limited, will bring forth better results."

"In a metropolitan district there are many problems peculiar to that area. Manifestly, the most important phase of the utilities question in Chicago is transportation. There are over 800,000 people who daily come to the loop district to earn their livelihood. The business life of that city depends upon efficient, rapid transportation."

Up To People
"It may well be argued that those who live in Chicago are in the best position to work out solutions of the many problems in the supervision of the utility corporations. That the people of Chicago are in favor of local self-government has been manifested by them on many occasions."

"Control over utilities companies is now vested in the Illinois Commerce Commission. There are undoubtedly many ways in which home rule may be worked out but it would seem that fundamentally the question must be solved by eliminating the supervision of the commerce commission."

"I strongly urge that legislation be adopted by you to grant home rule to the people of Chicago in the supervision of the public utilities."

"The other major subjects of the call relates to the franchise of the street car lines in Chicago. There are some who have argued the advisability of granting a so-called 'terminable permit' or 'indeterminate franchise' which would grant the right to the utility companies to occupy the streets permanently, subject to revocation for cause."

Against Terminable Permits
"I am unalterably opposed to the granting of a franchise for an indefinite or perpetual period of time. Were we to grant a franchise of that character, we would bargain away the rights and privileges of all future generations. This we have no right, either legally or morally, to do. We should leave the future generations to solve their own problems as the necessity of their own times may demand."

"A few other subjects are also included in the call. Now held in the state treasury is $6,592,775 collected under the gas tax which has been ruled unconstitutional. The tax should be refunded, to any person who paid the same on gasoline not used for the operation of a motor vehicle, the balance to be distributed half to the several counties and half to hard road construction by the state. It is suggested that an appropriation be made from the funds collected under the racing law, to be distributed for county fair premiums."

Other Recommendation
"A recent decision of the Supreme Court was to the effect that a physician connected with a hospital giving medical service is not eligible to serve on the medical examining board. A simple amendment to the law will cure the situation."

"The board of trustees of the University of Illinois has received in trust certain property which has been held not to be exempt from taxation. An amendment to the revenue law is recommended to exempt such property."

"The research and educational hospital in Chicago is primarily an educational institution. I recommend that the necessary legislation be enacted to place the institution under the supervision of trustees of the University of Illinois."

"Recent casualties caused by aviation have impressed upon the public attention the need for regulatory legislation dealing with aviation."

"It is my belief that the necessary bills to carry out the subjects mentioned have been prepared by the municipalities and groups that are interested and are now ready for immediate consideration of the general assembly. This will make it possible for your body to act expeditiously and Robbins Bros. Circus, the world's largest circus giving street parade, will be here tomorrow for two performances, afternoon and evening.

enact such laws as you may deem needful within a relatively short time."

Political Gossip

Washington, May 15—(AP)—The national political pot was boiling again today as voters went to the polls and leaders to conventions to augment the rising tide of delegates to the Kansas City and Houston conventions.

There was a statement by Secretary Mellon predicting Hoover would be elected if nominated and expressing the opinion that the Commerce Secretary would make a good President, some more interpreting of the treasury head's Saturday statement on Hoover, senatorial delving into Hoover's campaign financing and requests for extending the Senate inquiry to Texas, a forecast of a break in the east's long "rule of absolutism," and the instructing of another handful of delegates for Governor Smith.

The outstanding political event on today's calendar was the New Jersey primary where 31 Republican and 28 Democratic delegates to the national convention are at stake. Although some Lowden delegate candidates were in the field, Hoover's forces predicted a complete victory. Supporters of Governor Smith, who picked up six delegates in the Wyoming convention yesterday, had claimed all the New Jersey delegates to Houston.

Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, pointed out that "Andrew Mellon compliments Hoover, but withholds the support that is necessary at Kansas City."

He said no one denied that Hoover had ability as a business man and administrator, but that opposition to him was "based on the fact that the farmers will not vote for him." He added the party could not win without the farmers' support.

Associates of Mellon, who has favored the renomination of President Coolidge, do not regard his endorsement of Hoover necessarily means that the Pennsylvania delegation will support him. In their opinion, the delegation still awaits developments at Kansas City before aligning itself.

Number Disabled Veterans Growing

Veterans Bureau statistics reveal that the number of disabled veterans of the World War is increasing as the men grow older and their powers of resistance finally crumble under the post-war strain of securing a livelihood for dependents and themselves.

This fact has been evident locally as well as in other portions of the country and as a result, the 1928 distribution of poppies takes rank as one of the most important activities to be sponsored by Horace F. Orr Post No. 540 of this city. The sale of V. F. W. Buddy Poppies provides Horace F. Orr Post with an available fund for relief work among disabled and needy veterans and their dependents. The proceeds from the sale of Buddy Poppies make it possible for the Post to administer emergency medical and hospital treatment for veterans unable to secure this care for themselves. It also permits the post to carry on welfare work among veteran patients at government hospitals in this regional district.

Aside from these objectives, the poppy relief fund offers a source of relief for the widows and orphans of deceased or disabled comrades. It contributes to the maintenance and expansion of the V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., created for the care of widows and orphans of deceased veterans; service bureau work, including Veterans Bureau liaison in this district and at Washington; special equipment for hospital patients and the use of hospital; military funerals for deceased ex-service men and the acquisition and maintenance of burial plots and graves.

Every year scores of needy veterans and their dependents are given relief through the V. F. W. poppy fund, administered by a committee of members within easy access for instant action whenever the emergency arises. In this way, the public has been saved the annoyance of solicitations and pleas for relief, contributions throughout the year. The annual Buddy Poppy drive is the V. F. W. plan to "honor the dead by helping the living."

WHAT PRICE BROKEN HEARTS

By Olive Roberts Barton
They say that fools rush in where angels fear to tread. Class me as you wish but I hereby announce that I am no friend of the great American institution known as the Breach of Promise Suit.

That there are exceptional cases where it may be justified is perfectly true. But in order to appraise the actual worth of anything, we must look at results. And the results of the breach of promise suit are indisputably bad.

For one thing, it is making men skeptical and wary. They are losing faith in women fast enough without the shadow of a court hanging over their heads. I am expecting a shower of protests from the four corners of the globe, telling me what beasts men are, breakers of faith and hearts, ruiners of virtue and reputations, and all that.

But although some men may be all these things, most are none of them—so it won't do any good to write. Like the school marm in "A Day Off," I've made up my mind!

How many girls change their minds after they get engaged? Thousands of them—often without any excuse at all. Does it ever occur to their jilted lovers to sue them, whether they are rich or not? I never heard of a case. So if for any reason on earth a man changes his mind, why should it be right for his ex-fiancee to sue him?

If they have been living as man and wife beforehand, and marriage has been promised, I still cannot see that the balm of a few hundred dollars can compensate for the lack of a minister. And I also believe that under the circumstances men should not have to take all the blame.

More than one young man has remarked in my hearing, "I wouldn't write a letter to a girl these days for worlds. I know better."

That's what it has come to. And this lack of faith in femininity is spreading. No other nation of women on earth flies to court for compensation like American women. That it is not an easy world for women I'll confess, but by such tactics we are only making it harder for ourselves and those who come after us.

Co-ed in College in Ohio Dies in Flames

Springfield, Ohio, May 15—(AP)—Fire in Woodland Hall, a girls' dormitory at Wittenberg College, early today caused the death of a co-ed and the serious injury to three others, while a score of girls were routed from their beds.

Hilda Sipes, 20, Shelby, Ohio, was found dead in the building by firemen who worked an hour and a half to extinguish the blaze. She had apparently fallen victim of the smoke and was burned by the flames that destroyed the dormitory.

The three co-eds taken to a hospital for treatment of their injuries are: Alice Olde, Detroit, cuts, burns, bruises about wrists and hands.

Helen McClain, Troy, Ohio, back and ankles injured.
Marie Schneider, Indianapolis, broken nose.

Almost a score of other co-eds living in the dormitory escaped after one of their number smelled smoke and discovered that the fire was sweeping the house in which they were sleeping.

SEED CORN TEST IN OGLE PROVED TO BE OF VALUE

Condition of Seed in Our Neighboring County is Satisfactory

In summarizing the results of the corn germination work at the Ogle County Farm Bureau office this week it was found that the average condition of the seed corn tested this spring is better than that of last year, both in vigor and in amount of disease found. In testing for diseases on the Farm Bureau germinator the corn this year showed about 30 per cent to be practically free from disease while last year the proportion was about 15 per cent.

Disease free seed was selected by the germination test for 26 members this year who had attended meetings to receive instructions in culling their seed corn and who after culling out inferior ears submitted 60 ears of good seed for the final test at the Farm Bureau office. The real test of this seed selection will be given by comparing the selected seed in the field with average seed for yield and quality at time of husking.

It is pointed out by members co-operating in the corn selection project that the system of culling alone as taught at the seed corn meetings during the last three years has produced an increase in yield averaging four bushels per acre over the County. The profit to the grower is shown to be increased in several ways, namely, in an increased amount of corn grown per acre, an improvement in quality and market value, a reduction in cost of production because of a larger yield per acre and the possibility of picking better seed corn having more resistance to corn diseases. The profits are estimated at from three dollars to five dollars per acre for all corn grown from carefully selected seed.

Much corn is being planted this week. Weather conditions being so much better than they were last year at planting time, farmers are hopeful of a better year and a better crop.

The Farm Week in Washington

Washington—(AP)—A move of immense interest to agriculture was taken the other day when a bill authorizing $200,000 for development of methods to recover potash for fertilizer from United States deposits was reported favorably by the committee on mines and mining. Asserting that "the need for a cheap fertilizer is universally acknowledged" and that "almost all of the necessary elements of fertilizer for the enrichment of our depleted lands is shipped in from abroad," the report said "it is clearly a part of good business, good judgment, enlightened self-interest, and security to pass this legislation."

In 1926 congress authorized an appropriation of $100,000 annually for five years to determine the location, extent and mode of occurrence of potash deposits in the country. The investigation revealed deposits thick enough to provide quantity production. The potash found is in the form of a hard salt known as polyhalite, which has a potash content when absolutely pure of 15.6 per cent.

Pure polyhalite is soluble in water and is combined with salts which are either neutral or beneficial, requiring no treatment other than crushing or grinding to be used as a direct fertilizer. Unfortunately, however, the polyhalite disclosed in the wells of New Mexico and Texas is not pure and it is necessary to devise some method cheaper than any now known in order to make such deposits commercially available.

Before the world war approximately 99 per cent of the potash consumed in this country originated in Germany. During the war this supply was cut off and the United States engaged in a scramble to produce it commercially. The cessation of hostilities checked the development, however, for with the reimportation of foreign potash and consequent lower prices obtaining, domestic plants found it unprofitable to continue and their number dropped from 128 in 1918 to 11 in 1924. In 1926 only one of the potash manufacturing plants, the department of commerce says, had survived and that plant was running practically as a borax producing concern.

Private concerns have been experimenting with this problem for some time and work along this line still is being carried on, but as yet no product has been developed that would enable producers to supply adequately the demand for potash or to compete profitably with the foreign product. Soil and fertilizer experts believe, nevertheless, that there can be little doubt that such a chemical process will sooner or later be revealed, and they are looking forward to the passage of the bill, introduced by Rep. Charles E. Winter of Wyoming, to provide the funds which will enable the trained specialists of the government to begin work on the problem. The investigations would be made jointly by the departments of agriculture and commerce.

Valuable Hints for Farmers and Their Good Wives

Hogs kept in the feed lot with cattle which are being fattened help to make the enterprise profitable, especially where large quantities of grain are used in the rations. Cattle in pork are largest when whole grains are used, but such seeds as milo, kafir and barley should be ground. It is well to have at least one shote to every two steers.

Most of the soils of the east, south and parts of the central west are deficient in lime and will respond with increased yields to its application. Lime stimulates the proper decomposition of the organic matter in the soil, neutralizes acids, improves the physical condition of heavy soils and supplies directly or indirectly elements needed by growing plants.

Although the time for sowing soybeans depends somewhat on the altitude and the use to be made of the crop, in general the period extends from early spring until midsummer. If they are to be used as a grain or hay crop, seeding should be done about corn planting time, or when the ground has become thoroughly warm, since they germinate and grow poorly in soil that is cold or too wet or dry.

The first essential in housing chickens and hens is comfort, says a bulletin on poultry houses and fixtures prepared by M. A. Jull and

A. R. Lee. Unless they are comfortable, the experts explain, chicks will not grow well, and pullets and hens will not lay well. To be comfortable, a house must provide plenty of room, be well supplied with fresh air and sunlight and always be dry.

Cows normally lose flesh for three or four weeks after calving because they cannot consume sufficient feed to provide adequately for both the milk flow and maintenance of body weight. It is important that the cow carry considerable flesh at the time of calving to prevent undue thinness afterward.

The term "cull potatoes" usually is applied to those that are small, misshapen or oversized and therefore not suitable for the market. If these are from healthy and productive plants they may safely be used for seed provided the tubers be not less than an inch and a quarter in diameter. When the percentage of the cull potatoes is not known, they never should be used for seed.

The dry method of picking a chicken usually is more satisfactory than scalding, since the latter method is liable to injure the skin. Dry-picked poultry usually has a better appearance, is of better quality, keeps longer and gives better satisfaction to the customer.

When using arsenical dips to eradicate livestock parasites care must be exercised to protect the animals against poisoning. Long-haired animals, such as goats and sheep, should be held in draining pens until the surplus drip has disappeared.

Gleanings of Farm News From About the State

(BY THE AP.) Ames, Iowa—A good pasture for hogs will reduce the amount of grain needed, will speed up the gains—enabling the sale of the pig crop on an earlier market—and is a big help in maintaining health and preventing parasites in hogs, R. L. Quafie, animal husbandry specialist, Iowa State College, advises.

"White a good hog pasture is desirable in practically any spring, it is especially to be desired this year, because of a feed shortage," he said. "A good pasture will help in getting the pigs through until the next crop is harvested."

Alfalfa and red clover are outstandingly good forage crops for hogs. Of these two alfalfa is the better, furnishing more feed. If neither red clover nor alfalfa is available, then the next best crop is Dwarf Essex rape. It should be seeded four pounds to the acre of drilled and six pounds to the acre if broadcast. Oats may be sown with the rape, but not to exceed one bushel per acre.

"Rape should preferably be sown every two weeks. The first may be sown as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring. The hogs may be alternated from one patch to another allowing the idle one to recuperate. An acre will carry approximately fifteen hogs, depending on the amount of grain fed. Where hogs were full-fed on corn and tankage on rape pasture in one experiment, an acre of rape replaced about one ton of corn and 630 pounds of tankage."

"Sweet clover also may be used for hog pasture. Enough stock should be on the field to keep it down and the pigs must learn to like it."

Amboy, Ill.—Now is the time to gas woodchucks that are infesting Illinois farms. C. E. Yale, farm adviser of Lee county, is telling farmers in his county.

"The surest practical method of controlling woodchucks on the average farm is to gas the animals in their burrows," he advised. "Burrows should be gassed only during the spring months, however, preferably during April and May. At that time the woodchuck is actively engaged in making the home ready for rearing the young and the burrows are less likely to be occupied by other animals, the destruction of which would be undesirable."

"Young woodchucks are born, usually during April, and spend the first four to six weeks within the home den. Protecting them, therefore, furnishes another reason for the adult woodchuck repelling an invasion by other animals. At this season also the short vegetation enables one readily to detect the burrows from a distance, and the animals are more concentrated than later in the summer, when the young woodchucks are forced to leave the parental den to find homes of their own."

"In using calcium-cyanide dust, place one ounce, or one rounded tablespoonful of the dust as far down each burrow as possible with a long handled spoon. Close the entrance. A portable foot-pump dust gun, similar to that used in rat control may be used if available. This method requires only about half as much dust as the spoon method, and if many burrows are to be treated, the saving in material may be more than sufficient to pay the cost of the gun."

"Directing the exhaust of an automobile into a burrow by means of a hose is usually successful and practical in gassing the woodchucks, when only a few accessible burrows are to be treated. The carburetor should be set to furnish a rich mixture and the motor allowed to run at a moderate speed for ten or fifteen minutes.

Galesburg—Egg production depends more upon the amount and kind of protein eaten than upon any other feed. A. R. Kemp, assistant farm adviser of Knox county has told poultry raisers here.

"Hens are naturally grain eaters," he said, "and will do well on almost any grain mixture if they have milk or meat scrap to go with it. By holding most of the whole grain until the night feeding you keep the hens hungry and thus force them to exercise and eat."

Raids by rats on baby chicks in brooder houses is a common occurrence every spring and there is a resulting enormous loss to individuals and to the poultry industry in general, poultry authorities are advising growers now.

The best control method consists of the elimination of rat harbors. A few hours spent in burning trash and refuse and in piling lumber above ground should be the first consideration as a perfect control method and should be carried out as soon as possible.

Apply poisons and fumigants of known efficiency after the cleanup work has been completed. Calcium cyanide can be used very effectively to kill rats in burrows in the ground and under concrete. Red Squill is a very effective poison to kill rats and, so far as it has been able to determine, does not injure poultry and other beneficial animals. Barium carbonate canals be used in buildings where poultry and other farm animals can be excluded.

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Hog and cattle prices which had been rising for several days broke 25 cents to $1.25 last week due to increasing receipts, but the decline stopped before great damage was done and the markets seem to be firmly entrenched at the present level, according to Prairie Farmer's weekly agricultural review. During the last two weeks receipts of cattle were the largest since January 1. Finished steers made up the bulk of the run. If current impressions of the numbers remaining on feed in the country are correct, the present volume of fed steer arrivals will not be maintained and the break may not go much further.

Increased hog receipts in the last three weeks caused a decline of 50 cents to $1.25, being largest on lower grades and pigs. Prices are now about equal to the average of the late spring, summer and early fall of 1927. Receipts are due to increase through the next month as the fall pig crop gets under way. While this run is being absorbed, prices are likely to be softer than in the last month.

A dearth of finished lambs and poor quality among California spring lambs on recent markets brought lamb prices to a new high level at Chicago. This attracted larger receipts especially of springers, and values had a reaction of 60 to 75 cents from the peak. Wool prices continued firm on seaboard markets, with arrivals of the new clip gradually increasing.

Wheat prices broke 15 cents after advancing to a new high level for the season and going more than 40 cents above the February low spot. Speculative buying attracted by reports of severe damage to the new crop, made the market highly unstable. About 26 per cent of the planted acreage of winter wheat was abandoned, compared with only 8.4 per cent a year ago and a 10-year average of 10.5 per cent. The growing condition of the crop on May 1, was estimated as 75.4 per cent of normal, compared with 85.6 per cent last year and a 10-year average of 85. Much of the damage to soft red winter wheat is beyond repair and the hard winter wheat deteriorated during April. Reports from Europe continue to emphasize damage there. The wheat market will be influenced largely by weather conditions during the rest of the crop season.

Corn advanced along with wheat but suffered a severe setback late last week. Prices are about 30 cents higher than a year ago. The visible supply has been decreasing more rapidly than usual and now totals 34 million bushels compared with 46 million bushels at the high point in March. Weather conditions have turned more favorable, and the large winter wheat abandonment points to a substantial increase in corn acreage.

The outlook for the new hay crop is not very favorable and that coupled with the fact that pastures have been slow in developing, has steadied hay prices. The yield from the first cutting of both alfalfa and clover will be below normal.

Apparently the peak in egg production has been passed and prices seem firmly entrenched at their present level. Dealers who held off buying eggs for storage earlier in the season are now in the market and a brisk competitive trade is the result.

The butter market is reflecting the unsettled and nervous tone which is usual at the beginning of a new season, and prices will probably respond quickly to the first evidence of heavy production. Trade in cheese recently has been restricted to immediate needs, but volume has been sufficiently large to prevent any reduction in prices.

Humans Get T. B. from Cows; Mayo

Dr. D. C. Lochead, of the Mayo clinic, in an article in Hoard's Dairyman for March 10, 1928, among other things says:

"Dr. Mayo knows that tuberculosis in cows is a cause of tuberculosis in humans not only theoretically but actually."

"It has been proven that bovine tuberculosis is frequently transmitted

LEE COUNTY DAIRY HERD IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Monthly Report of Tester Halsey Miles, Tester, for April is Made Public by Association

5 High Cows

James Morrissey has high cow for month of April. She produced 1696 pounds of milk and 65.8 pounds butter fat. She is a pure bred Holstein, only 3 years old. She was fed ground corn and cob meal, ground oats, equal parts oil meal and bran with alfalfa and corn silage as roughage. This is a very good showing, considering the age of the cow. During the month of March she produced 60 pounds butter fat.

The next four ranked as follows:
Owner Breed Milk Fat
E. R. Fulton, G. H. 1890 58.6
Rudolph Heiden, G. W. 1245 57.3
H. L. Rhoads, P. B. H. 1356 55.6
Utley & Perkins, G. Guern. 1416 55.2
All these cows were fed rations of ground corn and cob meal and ground oats with some high protein feed such as oil meal or bran or both.

5 High Herds

The high herds ranked as follows:
Owner No. Cows No. Cows in milk dry Breed Average Milk Average Fat
Holly Smith 11 1 G. & P. B. Hol. 1184 39.8
Jas. Morrissey 7 9 P. B. Hol. 1122 39.3
E. R. Fulton 13 0 G. Hol. 1285 39.1
Utley & Perkins 23 3 G. & P. B. Guern. 806 34.7
Carl Sartorius 14 2 G. & P. B. Hol. 948 33.5

These cows have been fed throughout the winter on some high protein feed. This is absolutely necessary if any records are to be obtained that will make a showing during the month of April. No member of the association failed to feed a high protein feed. The average of the association was 29.1 pounds butter fat, which was third for the state. The cows as a whole were fed good balanced ration that month.

Value of Protein Feed

Rocho and Kennedy had a cow that produced in January 24 pounds of butter fat. She had as grain, ground corn and cob meal and oats equal parts. In February she was fed ground corn, ground oats, oil meal, bran and soy bean meal. She began increasing in milk and by April she produced 54 pounds of butter fat. All of these protein feeds need not have been fed had the roughage been good, but it was very poor, mostly timothy hay, and these had to be supplemented to obtain a balanced ration. It took her this long to climb up to that production because of the condition she was in after she freshened. It pays to have cows fat when they freshen.

There are now 27 interested members in the association.
Halsey Miles, Tester.

to humans, usually in other forms than lung tuberculosis.

"Pasteurization is a factor of safety—but only a factor."

"The best method for eradicating tuberculosis from a herd is by the tuberculin test."

"The tuberculin test is nearer perfect than the Wasserman test for syphilis, the Widal test for typhoid, the throat swab for diphtheria, or the sputum test for tuberculosis."

"Milk from a tuberculous udder may contain as many tubercle bacilli as there are ordinarily found in sputum from tuberculous lungs."

"The milk from one tuberculous udder may contain sufficient bacilli to seriously infect the milk of 25 to 30 cows."

"Recently Tonney, White and Danforth collected statistics of 16,700 milk samples, of which 8.6 per cent showed contamination with tubercle bacilli. The figure varies from 61 per cent in Berlin in 1904 to 3.5 per cent in Chicago in 1923-25."

"COMBINES" MAY SOLVE HARVEST LABOR PROBLEM

Winnipeg—(AP)—Western Canada's annual harvest labor problem may be solved at least to some extent, authorities say, by the combined harvester-thresher. In the past it has been necessary to import 60,000 men from other parts of Canada and from the United States to assist in garnering the crops.

More than 770 combines were used in western Canada in 1927, an increase of 588 over the previous year. It is forecast that as many as 1,000 combines will be operating in the wheat fields of the Canadian west in 1928. The area to be cut and threshed by each machine is estimated at about 600 acres.

This Seed Corn Treatment Proved by 200,000 Practical Corn Growers

BAYER DUST seed corn treatment makes corn growing more profitable. It is time-tried and field-proved. Four years of actual field use has proven its value.

BAYER DUST prevents rotting of seed in cold, wet weather; improves germination and stand; checks losses from seed-borne and soil-borne diseases; and increases yield from 3 to 10 bushels per acre.

FOLLOW the success of over 200,000 corn growers—use the proved seed corn treatment and plant for profit. Some untended treatment may be beneficial, but let your neighbors do the experimenting.

Tested by the U.S. Department of Agriculture
Iowa Experiment Station
Illinois Experiment Station

A summary of reports published by these outstanding authorities show that BAYER DUST increased the yield as follows:
Nearly disease-free seed, 3.2 bush. per A.
Average seed, 3.5 " " "
Diploelia-infected seed, 12.1 " " "
Gibberella-infected seed, 15.1 " " "

Proved by 200,000 Growers
Last season, over 200,000 Corn Belt growers used Bayer seed treatment. Let these men tell you in their own words what they think of BAYER DUST:

Permits Earlier Planting
"The corn did not decay in the soil but came up and did good in spite of the cold wet season."

Insures Germination
"Never had corn come up so thick. I have been farming 14 years and did stand."

Prevents Replanting
"My neighbor planted on the same day and did not treat his seed and had to plant over."

Fewer Barren Stalks
"Had fewer barren stalks than other years—dry rot and moldy ears very nearly eliminated."

Improves Quality
"The treated corn was much better quality—solid, dry ears."

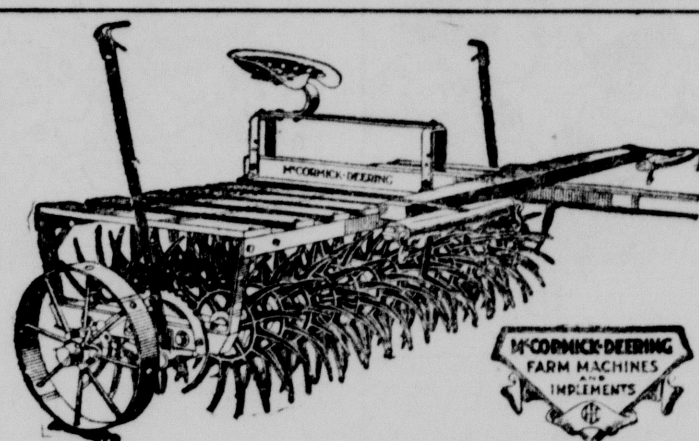

Increases Yield
"Increased my yield from 5 to 23 bushels per acre." "The corn that was not treated was not as good by ten bushel to the acre."

Easy to Use—Costs Little
You can use Bayer Dust at a cost of less than five cents an acre. No special equipment is required. Simply use as a dust treatment. Two bushels of seed can be treated in less than three minutes.

GUARANTEE
Plant a few acres of BAYER DUST treated seed in alternate rows with untreated seed. If, at harvest time, you are not satisfied, return the empty BAYER DUST can to us and we will refund price paid.

1 pound treats 6 bushels of seed corn. 1 lb. $1.75; 5 lbs. $8.00

CALCIUM STARVATION

Every tissue of the body contains organic calcium, which is also known by the name of lime. The hard tissues such as the osseous, or bony structure, and the firm tendons and ligaments contain the largest proportion of this valuable element, but no cell of any other part of the body can live for very long unless calcium is included in its mineral composition.

The blood is predominately alkaline, and death ensues as soon as this alkaline balance is lost and the blood becomes over-charged with acids. Judging health as 100%, if the blood contains only one half as much alkali as it should, the health of that individual so deprived of alkaline bases is certainly not over 50% of the normal. Calcium stands as the greatest source of alkaline supply of alkaline salts.

Efforts are being made by chemists to develop some method of supplying this lime to the tissues through artificial means, but their efforts have so far completely failed and we are forced to fall back upon the natural source so obvious at all times. This natural supply can come only from the use of food which is rich in calcium and which has not been de-mineralized by too much preparation and changing by food merchants.

Whole grains include calcium in abundance in their chemical composition, but this element, as well as many others is completely lost in the roller-mill process used in making white flour.

Cows need the whole grain to remain in health and give life to their calves. If fed on white flour their sick and die within a few weeks. This is because of starvation for the necessary organic minerals of the whole grain. If the cows are only fed partly on white flour, their calves will be born dead, or live only a few hours. What chance do human mothers have to be healthy or bring into the world vigorous offspring when over 50% of their diet during the gestation period is composed of victuals made from bolted flour? If a sufficient supply of the leafy green vegetable is used, the loss of the whole grains will not be felt but if only excesses of pure starch are used, the blood will be robbed of its reserve of calcium and the cells must suffer from such loss.

People who use an excess of de-calified foods will always complain of being "run down." If they ever expect to "run up" again this can only be brought about by the use of unrefined foods which will "run up" their calcium units in the cells.

Calcium starved patients cannot digest food properly, as this element is indispensable in making the digestive ferments, without which the chemistry of digestive ferments, without which the chemistry of digestion and assimilation cannot take place.

If you have enough calcium in your blood, when a wound is accidentally made, the blood will coagulate quickly in the wound; whereas, those known as "bleeders" show a evidence of being calcium starved.

The use of over-refined foods of any kind is the direct cause of decaying and crumbling teeth.

Resistance to disease is also made less and less as the alkaline balance of the blood is lost and the tissues develop a more acid reaction.

You cannot get your lime out of the rocks as the plants do, but you have always for your use the vegetables which have converted the mineral lime into organic calcium to be used by the body as nature intended.

LETTER GOLF

THIS IS LOVELY!
It couldn't be helped! Today's letter golf puzzle just had to come some time, so here it is—from LOVE to SICK without a wasted stroke for the unbeatable par of four. One solution is printed on page 11.

K	C	I	S
E	L	O	V

THE RULES
1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2—You can change only one letter at a time.
3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each pump. Strange words and abbreviations don't count.
4—The order of letters cannot be changed.
One solution is printed on page 11.

mean is that you have hyperacidity of the stomach. This can be cured if you will learn to live on the proper food combinations. Follow the menus suggested in this column, and you will soon notice a change for the better. If you will send me a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will be glad to send an article "Healthful Menus" without charge.

QUESTION: Mrs. J. K. asks: "Is the moderate use of condiments very harmful? I find it hard to do without a little spice or vinegar in preparing meals?"

ANSWER: Spices and condiments stimulate the flow of digestive juice, and if they are used at all they should be used at a meat meal. Those who suffer from hyperacidity already have more acid than they know what to do with and anything which excites an additional flow of hydrochloric acid is bad for them.

QUESTION: J. H. writes: "My blood examination shows a positive Wassermann. Will you answer me in the paper and tell me what to do?"

ANSWER: Your question refers to a subject which cannot be freely discussed in the column of the daily paper. If you desire such information, you must write a personal letter to me, giving your full name and address, which, of course, will never be published in the paper.

QUESTION: H. K. asks: "Should one eat his meal if it is time but he is not hungry?"

ANSWER: There would not be much sickness nor many digestive disorders if people would eat only when hungry. Appetite and hunger are quite different, but you should at least have an appetite before your meals, or you should wait and miss as many meals as necessary until there is a return of your normal hunger.

OUR TREES

BEAUTIFUL AND USEFUL
Tall and stately the white pine is the most beautiful of all eastern evergreens. It grows from New Foundland to Lake Winnipeg and southward through the Lake States, the New England states and in the Appalachians as far south as northern Georgia.

Knowing the good qualities of white pine lumber, our New England forefathers chose it to build their homes and meeting places, and today fine old colonial houses and churches some of them 200 years old, yet in excellent state of preservation stand throughout New England.

The lumber industry in the United States was founded on white pine and for some 250 years it was the leader in the lumber markets. Today the original forests of white pine are mere fragments and the bulk of the future supply must come from second growth. The remaining virgin stand of white pine is principally in the Lake States.

The wood of white pine has a fine uniform texture, is light in weight, soft, easy to dry and stays in place well. The larger part of the lumber cut goes into building material. It can be in every part of the house.

Now that the supply of eastern white pine is so greatly depleted, the largest cut of white pine lumber comes from the Idaho white pine. This species, sometimes called mountain or silver pine, is the western counterpart of pinus strobus, which it resembles in general appearance and in the qualities of its wood.

Sugar pine is another pine of commercial importance. Its range extends along the Pacific coast from southern Oregon to southern California. It is also used principally for construction purposes.

LOSS IN WINTER WHEAT CROP IN STATE ENORMOUS

Heaviest on Record is the Report of Ill and U. S. Departments

Springfield, Ill., May 15.—(AP)—The smallest acreage of winter wheat in Illinois since 1897—67 per cent of the entire crop sown last fall—will be harvested this year.

A joint report of the state and Federal Departments of Agriculture for May 1, revealed today that the loss of winter wheat acreage in Illinois during the past winter and spring has been the heaviest on record. Crop growth is late, the report said. Due to the cold backward spring weather. Young cloverland alfalfa was reported frozen out in many counties. Pastures are late and poor. The fruit outlook is spotted, ranging from favorable reports for apples to fair to poor for peaches and berries.

While hay supplies were above average, grain feeds were less than usual.

Spring weather conditions have been favorable for advancing farm relief work which is well above the average. Farm labor situation is reported favorable with the supply generally in excess of demand. Soil was unusually dry at the close of the month and a good general rain was badly needed over the central and northern portions of the state.

Winter and spring conditions have been unusually adverse for winter wheat. Excepting the mid-winter snow, dry weather dominated most of the winter. Alternate freezing and thawing during January and February caused an unusual amount of heaving which extensively with resultant killing of stands. Dry, windy March weather and frosty nights with further heaving rapidly completed the ruin of numerous stands which had been weakened by adverse winter conditions.

Very few fields of soft wheat in the southern areas or late sown fields of wheat over the entire state survived. The abandoned wheat acreage is heaviest in the east central and southern areas, where the majority of farmers have lost their entire planted acreage. In many of these counties there are only a few fields of thin wheat remaining. In a general way conditions improve toward the western and northwestern portions of the State. Loss of acreage is more moderate in the upper Illinois River section and in the counties to the west and north of this region.

Of the large state acreage of 2,348,000 acres of winter wheat sown last fall 67 per cent has been abandoned. This compares with 5 per cent abandoned a year ago and the past 10 year average loss of 62 per cent. The acreage of winter wheat remaining for harvest is only 1,105,000 acres or 48 per cent of the acreage harvested in 1927. This is the smallest acreage of winter wheat in Illinois since 1897 and compares with the average acreage for the past 5 years of 2,474,000 acres. A large part of the abandoned wheat acreage has already been sown to oats, spring wheat and barley and the remainder will be sown to corn, soybeans and cowpeas. For the U. S. the abandoned wheat acreage is also heavy, amounting to about 25 per cent of the acreage sown last fall compared with 84 per cent last year ago. This leaves the U. S. acreage of winter wheat for harvest at 35,858,000 acres compared with 37,872,000 acres a year ago.

The condition of winter wheat in Illinois remaining for harvest is the poorest since 1912 and is estimated at 54 per cent of normal compared with 84 per cent a year ago and the 10 year average of 84 per cent. Growth is backward due to dry cool weather during April and many stands are patchy and thin. State production outlook for winter wheat is 10,471,000 bushels compared with 30,956,000 bushels produced a year ago and the past 5 year average production of 40,654,000 bushels.

Illinois rye condition was reported at 73 per cent of normal compared with 77 per cent a year ago and the 10 year average condition of 90 per cent. State rye averaged 55,000 acres which compares with 71,000 acres

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist, is engaged to VIRGINIA BREWSTER, whose father is a prominent Wall Street financier. After losing his fortune in speculation BREWSTER dies of heart failure and leaves his daughter penniless.

NIEL urges VIRGINIA to marry him at once, but an old family friend, FREDERICK DEAN, and his daughter CLARISSA persuade her to make her temporary home with them.

NIEL is angry when VIRGINIA tells him her decision, for he suspects DEAN'S motives and does not like the shallow CLARISSA, who has just announced her engagement to RUSSELL WAIN-GOLD. He takes VIRGINIA to her new home and returns unhappily to his neglected studio, where he finds his model, CHIRI, waiting with hot coffee for him. He knows that CHIRI is jealous of VIRGINIA, and fearing that she will become a nuisance he repulses her and she leaves in a temper.

Meanwhile, VIRGINIA is puzzled by a talk with CLARISSA in which the latter intimates that she will tolerate no trespassing where RUSSELL'S money and affection are concerned, and says: "Your grief has not clouded your good judgment as a Modern."

CHAPTER VII

"Come in," Virginia called. She expected to see one of the servants enter. Instead, it was her host who opened the door and stepped inside.

"Aren't you coming down to lunch?" he asked pleasantly.

"Not if you don't mind," Virginia answered wearily.

"Poor child; you're exhausted. Well, do as you like, of course, but I hope you will be able to join us at dinner. Perhaps it would benefit you to go for a drive this afternoon. Shall I order a car?"

Virginia glanced out the window at the clear blue sky with lazy, white clouds drifting over like sheep in a meadow. She had a sudden feeling of oppression, as though the charmingly furnished room in which she stood were about to contract upon her, to smother her.

"Yes, please do," she cried with unexpected fervor; "it will be glorious to get outdoors."

"At three, then?" Mr. Dean asked. He appeared surprised at her eagerness.

"Oh, sooner," Virginia urged; then conscious that her manner was strange, added in explanation, "I'm sure I'll be able to think better outdoors."

Dean frowned. "You aren't worrying about your future, I hope. That isn't necessary, my dear."

"I don't know exactly what I'm worrying about," Virginia exclaimed, her voice resting on a note of hysteria.

"You mustn't let yourself go to pieces," he warned her. "You know you can count on me to help you in any way I can."

"It isn't anything I can talk about," Virginia told him.

He came over and took her hands in his.

"The car will be ready whenever you want it," he said gently. "And now may I send up some lunch to you?"

Virginia nodded.

But when the lunch arrived she left it untouched. Her windows gave on Fifth Avenue, and she sat, hatted, watching for the car to arrive.

After what seemed to Virginia a long time Mr. Dean's dark blue limousine drew smartly up to the curb. She ran from the room and down the stairs, pulling on her gloves at the same time.

She was crossing the hall when Dean appeared in the door of the dining room and spoke to her.

"Would you wait just a moment?" he said. "I'd like to go college, have shown that "sweet clover poisoning" is particularly a disease of animals from a few months up to two or three years of age, although it is not uncommon in older cattle.

Studies made by Schaik and Rodrick indicate that tame rabbits are affected more readily and much earlier than cattle under the same condition of feeding. When fed continually on sweet clover containing the disease-producing qualities, a large majority of the rabbits arrive at a critical stage within six to 20 days, with an average of ten or eleven days.

"This is invariably from one week to ten or twelve days earlier than cattle are so affected when fed the same material," Schaik said. "Therefore farmers having a quantity of molded sweet clover on hand which they contemplate feeding can try it out on rabbits with practically absolute safety to their cattle."

The veterinarians say they have not been able to associate the disease with sheep to any extent. Although feeding trials with horses sown last fall and 62,000 acres harvested a year ago.

The condition of hay in Illinois is below average and reported at 67 per cent against 87 per cent a year ago and the 10 year average of 83 per cent. Illinois hay reserves on farms from the 1927 crop are above average and reported 19 per cent against 11.5 per cent last season. U. S. hay reserves on farms are reported at 14.5 per cent compared with 11.3 per cent a year ago. Condition of Illinois pastures is 55 per cent compared with 90 per cent and demand at 88 per cent of normal.

Use Rabbits to Save Cattle from Disease

Fargo, N. D.—(AP)—Seeking to reduce loss of livestock poisoned by spoiled sweet clover hay, veterinarians at the North Dakota Agriculture college have found that feeding it to rabbits is a successful method of determining its safety for cattle feed.

Experiments conducted by A. F. Schaik, veterinarian, and L. M. Rodrick, assistant veterinarian, at the

DIXON SIXTH IN SECTIONAL MEET; ROCKFORD LEADS

O'Malley Copped 50- Yard
Dash: Locals are Second in Relay

Dixon high school's track team finished sixth among nineteen teams in the sectional meet held at Freeport Saturday, the Rockford high school athletes winning the meet, with Freeport second. The standing of the teams:

Rockford	45
Freeport	39
Oregon	21 1/2
Pecatonica	20 1/2
Milledgeville	13
Dixon	11
Lanark	11
Byron	10
Stockton	9 1/2
Galena	9
Harlem	8 1/2
Stillman Valley	8 1/2
Savanna	4 1/2
Chadwick	4
Mt. Carroll	4
Rochelle	3 1/2
Shannon	2
Dakota	2
Polo	1 1/2

The first record of the day to fall was that of the 120 high hurdles. Etnyre, star of the Byron team, topped the barriers in 17 1/2 seconds, this mark being two seconds better than the old record made by Christensen, of Savanna, in 1926. The Byron athlete, who was one of the stars of the day, ran a pretty race clearing the bars in a clean cut manner and having an advantage from the start.

Pecatonica high sent forth two record smashing athletes in the persons of Newberg and DeGrote. The former smashed the discus mark when he heaved the plate 123 feet, 2 inches. The latter was established by the former of Freeport. The "Pec" sensation soared over the bar at 11 feet, 11 1/2 inches to top the pole vault event and set up a new record. He tried three times to clear the bar at 11 feet, 5 inches, but failed.

The 220 was a close race with contestants battling it out for honors. Schmelze taking the position by a splendid burst of speed in the last few yards. Kindstrand, Rockford ace who had been hoped to win, was beaten by Schmelze. The Rockford athlete took second place but was then disqualified for running out of his lane.

In taking the 440 Kerlin ran a beautiful race, keeping sufficient reserve in store to break the tape ahead of the field. The youngster used his head as well as his legs in carrying off the event.

One-Legged Jumper
The meet was featured by the performance of Clifford Schutler, sixteen year old Stockton high school youth, who was entered in the running high jump despite the fact that he is handicapped by the loss of a leg. He tied for fourth place in the event, making a leap of 5 ft. 4 in. His work was greeted with applause from the gathering.

Atwood, of Rockford, was beaten out of a record in the 220 yard low hurdles when he kicked over the last hurdle. He ran the race in 27.9 seconds, which is one-tenth of a second under the mark but the claim for record does not stand as one of the barriers was knocked over.

Meet a Success
The entire meet proved to be a splendid success. It was capably handled, weather conditions were favorable and a big crowd enjoyed the sterling work of the young athletes. Etnyre of Byron, and Newberg, of Pecatonica, shared individual honors, each winning two firsts and each breaking a record.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Joe McCarthy's Cubs, unwontedly docile for the first month of the National League season, must have gotten hold of some raw meat somewhere.

Down in the depths of the second division two weeks ago, the Cubs suddenly came to life and today were resting in second place, only a game back of the league-leading Cincinnati Reds.

An 8 to 2 victory over the Giants at Chicago yesterday stretched the Cubs' string of victories to nine straight, the last three over New York which went west leading the pack and now is in fourth place.

The Reds maintained their hold on the lead by downing the Phillies at Cincinnati, 8 to 4, the game marking the Quakers' tenth straight defeat.

Rallies in the last three innings gave the Cardinals a 4 to 3 verdict over Boston at St. Louis. Hafey's fourth hit of the game scored the winning run in the ninth after the tying run had been stranded in the earlier. Douhit and Moore hit homers.

Brooklyn eked out a 7 to 6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Their third victory in a row over the Detroit Tigers 7 to 5, sent the New York Yankees' American League average up to the .800 mark. Babe Ruth hit his ninth homer of the year in the seventh inning and now is four games ahead of his record-breaking pace of last year.

Left Grove, crack southpaw of the Philadelphia Athletics, struck out eleven men as the A's beat Cleveland, 6 to 3, in 10 innings. The winning margin was provided by Jimmy Fox's pinch home run with two on base.

Ed Morris, big right hander from Mobile, registered his third win in a row as the Boston Red Sox nosed out the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 2.

Milt Gaston pitched the Washington Senators to victory, 4 to 2, over the Chicago White Sox. Tate drove in two runs and forced another over when he was walked with the bases loaded.

Glenna Continues to Show Opponents

Hustanton, Eng., May 15—(AP)—Led by Miss Glenna Collett, who won her third victory of the British Women's golf championship, all the Americans in the title event today stroked their way into the fourth round, which will be played tomorrow. Miss Collett won her third match while her three compatriots had to play only two to enter the fourth round.

Miss Collett continued to kill off champions and former champions by defeating Mrs. Temple Dobell, 4 up and 2 to play. Mrs. Dobell, the former Gladys Ravenscroft, has won both the British and American titles.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former British and American champion, won from Miss Dianna Esmond, a French girl, 6 and 5.

Miss Elizabeth Curtis, Clinton, Ia., had the hardest fight of the American quartet, disposing of Miss Cooper, a Scotch player, one up. Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Detroit, defeated Miss Alice Firebrace, of England, 2 and 1.

Was Bitter Pill

Rev. Fr. Weitekamp, Ed Hooker and John "Red" Vaile attended the Cubs-Giants game at Wrigley Field, Chicago, Monday. The former two enjoyed the game greatly but according to the announcer of radio station WGN, "Red" got absolutely no pleasure out of the hour and a half spent at the ball park. Nor has his life been one of extreme happiness today, for his friends are reminding him that the Cubs won again.

McGraw is Injured

Chicago, May 15—(AP)—John McGraw, veteran manager of the New York Giants, was hobbling about with the aid of a cane today as the result of a near serious accident after the Cubs-Giants game yesterday.

McGraw was crossing a traffic jammed street in front of Wrigley Field when his right leg was clipped by an automobile. No bones were broken but the leg was severely bruised. The driver of the car was not held.

If you attend the Dixon Evening Telegraph's Cooking School you will gather many new ideas in the way of decorating your table for dinners and luncheon parties.
